Summer is in full swing on the coast, and Elliston is buzzing with visitors following Christmas and New Year. With school holidays here and the warm weather encouraging everyone outdoors, there's plenty happening around town. This month, we'll share school holiday activities, highlight Zephyr's exhibition, celebrate our Citizen of the Year Award recipients, and bring you more local news.

ZEPHYR JONES

We're excited to invite you to Share Our Shores, a beautiful local art exhibition by Zephyr Jones, now on display at the Elliston Hall.

Zephyr's Story

"My name is Zephyr, I am 14 years old and I live in Elliston. I am passionate about Migratory and Beach-nesting Shorebirds and have been actively monitoring them for about 3 years. I love to sketch and paint shorebirds, and from this I have created an exhibition to help raise awareness for them in my area. Every year migratory shorebirds traverse the globe from Australia to the Arctic so they can breed. It is a journey they have made for thousands of years, following an ancient invisible pathway. Shorebirds are among the most endangered birds in the world, largely due to coastal development, climate change and disturbance from cars, dogs and people on beaches. I want to celebrate the remarkable lives of shorebirds, and inspire people to notice the birds on our shoreline.

I think shorebirds are such amazing, inspiring, beautiful and intrepid travellers and I think that each one of us that enjoys this pristine coastline should do all we can to ensure the survival of these birds. Share Our Shores is an exhibition combining artwork and information detailing the incredible and perilous lives of 16 migratory and 4 resident shorebirds. The exhibition follows each species' extraordinary journey and the threats they face. I have been working on this project for the last two years as a part of my home-schooling, but I am doing it because I love shorebirds and can see that they desperately need our help.

I have created artworks of the 16 Migratory Shorebirds and 4 Beach-nesting Birds that I have seen on the Eyre Peninsula. Watercolour is my main medium, but I have also used other media such as linocuts. Each species also has a large poster with information on behaviour, habitat, threats, migration movements and breeding, accompanied by a watercolour painting depicting defining features. I have put together information leaflets on Migratory and Resident Shorebirds relevant to my area. Printed gift cards of my watercolour paintings will be available and from these I hope to raise funds toward the protection of Shorebirds.

I hope that people will be inspired by my exhibition and join me in helping to protect and raise awareness for these incredible and vulnerable birds. With knowledge, understanding and simple steps we can share their story and reverse their decline."

The exhibition runs from 19th December 2025 ~ 20th of February 2026
Elliston Town Hall (Elliston Community and Visitor Information Centre)

What is the Flinders Island Safe Haven Project? From 2025, the whole of Flinders Island is being transformed into a safe haven for nationally threatened species. Safe havens are predator-free islands and fenced areas that protect mammals susceptible to predators. Across Australia, a network of more than 100 safe havens has been created by governments, landowners and conservation groups.

The first stage to make Flinders Island a safe haven is the eradication of introduced pest animals. These include predators and animals that have competed with native species for food and shelter, and degraded native vegetation. When the eradication is confirmed successful (success checks due in May 2027), threatened plant and animal species can be introduced to the protected environment.

Offshore Islands possess highly effective natural biosecurity barriers for ongoing protection against reinvasion, which dramatically reduces the cost to maintain a feral-free environment. Alongside benefits to native plants and animals, the Flinders Island Safe Haven will stimulate conservation and nature-based tourism and opportunities for the local community.

Important biosecurity information for all visitors Whether you travel to Flinders Island by plane, boat or barge, every visitor has a critical role to play in preventing pests from reinvading. Rats and mice are the biggest threats as stowaways, especially in vehicles, vessels and gear that has been stored away. All biosecurity actions and checklists are detailed on the Flinders Island Eco Escape website and must be strictly followed. The QR code at the top of the page will direct you to: <https://flindersislandeco.com/biosecurity-and-visitor-requirements/>

Notify, Check, Clean and Close - every trip, every time.

Preventing pests from making their way to the Island is the first, and most effective step in the biosecurity chain. Before leaving the mainland we need you to:

- Notify – Complete your booking or day visitor notification online.
- Check – Your luggage and personal items for pests and organic matter.
- Clean – Your footwear, outdoor clothes and equipment, and personal items.
- Close – Store your luggage securely after packing to prevent pest access before departure.
- Contact the Woolford's if you see any pest animals on the island. This includes mice, rats, cats.

Cooperation by every island visitor will make all the difference to the success of this project.

Beach-nesting Bird Update

The Hooded Plover and Red-capped Plover breeding season is from August to March and they currently have nests and chicks on our local beaches!

If you come across signs on the beach indicating a nesting area or a chick feeding zone, please don't linger between signs, put your dog on a lead and walk by the waters edge. The nesting signs are only up during the incubation period (28 days). Once hatched the chicks are on the move and could be anywhere on that beach. You may come across a chick feeding zone sign indicating to use caution as they can't fly for 35 days and are extremely vulnerable.

Nesting:

These birds are highly susceptible to disturbances. Hooded Plovers lay 2-3 eggs in a shallow scrape in the sand and both parents incubate them for 28 days. If disturbed, both birds will leave the nest in order to distract the threat away from the eggs. This leaves the eggs susceptible to predators like gulls, ravens, dogs and hawks and they are easily stepped on by people or dogs. The eggs left unprotected are sensitive to weather conditions; if it is hot they will overheat, if it is cold they will cool and if it is windy they can be covered with sand.

Chicks:

When Hooded Plover chicks hatch they must feed themselves and be able to travel to the waters edge safely. They are as small as a 50 cent piece and are extremely camouflaged. They cannot fly for their first 35 days. When there is a threat, the parents will call to their chicks and send them into hiding (crouching motionless on sand) to keep them safe. During this time the chicks can be eaten by other predators and can be easily stepped on. If the threat doesn't go away they may die from cold or overheating. Chicks cannot regulate their own temperature so must be brooded by their parents.

There are only 892 Hooded Plovers left in S.A. and they are listed as Vulnerable.

AUSTRALIA

Without our help there is only a 2.5% chance an egg will survive to adulthood. If we help them by taking simple steps like leashing dogs on breeding beaches, walking by the waters edge and not lingering we can help the survival of Hooded Plovers and reverse their decline.

COMMUNITY SAFETY

EXPRESSION OF INTEREST - SLSSA DRONE OPERATOR

Late last year, a Coastal Risk Assessment carried out by Surf Life Saving South Australia (SLSSA) identified the need for a community-managed drone in Elliston - to enhance local emergency response and coastal safety.

Drone Operators play an important role in keeping our coastline safe. As part of this team, you'll have access to SLSSA drones to conduct water surveillance during community events and recreational activities, and provide vital support in emergencies when called upon.

The drone, supplied and maintained by SLSSA, is equipped with a camera and speakers to assist in:

- Real-time coastal surveillance
- Community event monitoring
- Search and rescue operations
- Monitoring hard-to-access areas like cliffs and surf breaks

Given our remote location and limited rapid-response resources, this initiative will strengthen community safety, support emergency services, and improve response times during critical incidents.

We're now seeking Expressions of Interest (EOIs) from local residents keen to be trained and participate as Drone Operators under the Surf Life Saving SA framework. Volunteers will receive a 2-day training and operational support course – no prior experience required!

Minimum Requirements

- Aged 16 years or older
- Prepared to become a member of Surf Life Saving SA (no cost)
- Willing to obtain a Working with Children Check (WWCC) and National Police Check (NPC) (no cost)

Interested?
